

FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME

An individual is considered to be displaying unacceptable behaviour if they are verbally or physically harassing and/or abusing a game participant (player, coach or official).

The members of the BMHA have directed the BMHA to develop a program that recommits us to promote and honour the values of fun, respect and positive development in the game of hockey for our children. This program is to be implemented immediately.

The principal phase of this program is directed to parents/spectators. This program will be asking you to consider carefully your behaviour at the rink and how this behaviour impacts on the participants of the game.

The above definition of unacceptable behaviour will be used by parents, coaches and administrators in this program. The most common example of this type of behaviour would be the spectator who shouts or gestures to harass or abuse a participant (player, coach, official) in a way that the participant becomes aware of the intent of the activity. This is unacceptable behaviour and the program will be used to help this spectator understand the effects of his/her action.

An undesirable but necessary component of this program will be its enforcement. The BMHA has expanded its Bylaws to allow for strong and effective support by the members of the Association as they administer this program.

FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME

The Barrie Minor Hockey Association (BMHA) administers a minor hockey program for some 2,000 boys and girls who participate in "AA" "A" and house league programs within the boundaries of the City of Barrie.

The BMHA is operating under the terms of its By-laws and Constitution adopted by its members, and is the sole governing administrative and policy making body and rule enforcer for the BMHA within the City of Barrie. A part of its function is to formulate suspensions and to conduct hearings on specific rule contravention to determine suspensions and formulate policy directions and guidelines for its members. The BMHA, through its development committee, provides leadership and custom designed programs, specialty clinics and monitoring; to meet the specific needs of individual players, coaches, and teams. Its goal is to have Barrie 's hockey community at the forefront of hockey development.

The BMHA has seen a need to address the fundamental value of fun, respect and development of the Game both generally and within the Barrie context. These values manifest themselves into the general area of athletic and hockey development, on-ice activity and off-ice activity. The BMHA sees the Game having arrived at a critical point requiring it to focus on and re-emphasize values, fun, respect and positive development. Thus the program, "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" has been adapted.

The BMHA has and will continue to embark upon specific initiatives within all elements of the Game to establish and maintain the basic principles of the Game and its values of fun, respect and positive development. Although this basic principle has been influential in the past in the development of Barrie's minor hockey program; the BMHA now views the Game at a point whereby the values of fun, respect and positive development must be even more of a priority in discharging its mandate and guiding its members. Further, the BMHA does not see this as a short-term objective, but rather a permanent, on-going and over riding principle of the minor hockey program in Barrie. The BMHA views the "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" program and initiatives flowing there from as one of the most important it has ever engaged in. It clearly reflects upon the purpose and mission of the BMHA "to improve minor hockey in the City of Barrie" and increase interest in the game of hockey in the City.

There are several specific initiatives which are on-going, planned or will be planned in order to achieve the objectives and principles of the "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" program. As indicated, these values manifest themselves into three general areas of the Game. Each of these inter-relates in varying degrees; however, the activities associated with each must meet and continually reflect upon the basic values of fun, respect and positive development. The following pages set out the Game, it's critical elements and initiatives of the program relating to these elements.

Specific elements of the "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" program will be working in parallel and at different levels of progression. Through its Development Committee, the BMHA has expended considerable effort in the Game and hockey development. The BMHA is presently and will continue to expend considerable effort in this area. It is widely recognized that the development of hockey players generally and within our community requires a significant overhaul. We must focus energy away from developing only aggressive hockey players with professional and junior objectives to making the Game fun for all participants and spectators. We see the on-ice zero tolerance initiative as only the starting point in eliminating the violence and unnecessary aggression in the Game to foster true creative hockey development and sportsmanship. Most recently, the BMHA has initiated efforts with others to address behaviour on and off the ice. Incredible energy and focus has been given in the last year to these behavioural and value oriented matters. The BMHA plans to extend efforts on all elements of the Game by way of this program and its on-going initiatives with emphasis on fun, respect and positive development of the Game and its people. Much of this document focuses on the matters of values, behaviour and social development, both on and off the ice with emphasis on off-ice conduct and the elements of the program associated with addressing this matter. Further information and documentation will be formulated as other elements of the program are developed. We plan to supplement this initial information package as more initiatives unfold.

FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME

Over the past several years it has become increasingly apparent that participating in the Game, whether as a player, coach or spectator, has become less and less enjoyable. People are leaving the Game for the wrong reasons and with bad memories. Conduct of spectators, parents, coaches and players amongst themselves is increasingly more unacceptable, both on and off the ice.

Some hockey administrators either have been a part of, not appreciated or have ignored this problem, thus it has continued, creating a micro-culture which is unacceptable. Those many administrators who truly have attempted change have had their efforts frustrated. The clear majority of people, whether directly or indirectly impacted by the Game, emphasized the need to play with more respect and for fun. The volume and intensity of support and the momentum gained by our general program, initiatives and principles in a very short period of time are nothing short of "unbelievable".

The BMHA views "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" program as support and confirmation to the many excellent volunteers, coaches and parents who are in the majority and who have always practised and subscribed to these fundamental principles. We see this program as a vehicle to assist them to further these values and make the Game even better and more enjoyable. One could view "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" program as a celebration of the positive elements of the Game that will overwhelm those negative elements that have unfortunately tainted the reputation of the Game today. Those few who may question the program are the very ones that many of the elements of the program are aimed at and are indicative of a problem and not a solution. It is not a time to be defensive, but rather offensive and proactive in advocating a program that is totally positive. We encourage the majority to confidently come forward with energy and support "FOR THE GOOD OF THE GAME" program to make our Game even better.

BEHAVIOUR MODIFICATION - CULTURAL CHANGE

The BMHA has specifically noted an increased lack of respect amongst some constituents of the game. Players, coaches, officials, spectators and administrators must revisit civility and truly evaluate the reason for having the Game. We must focus the attention of participants to fun, fair play, respect, player and social development, as well as building rather than destroying self-esteem. It is about time something is done and the BMHA is prepared to do what it takes to impact in all these directions.

We must also focus on the concept of impartiality in the Game. It is an important element in the development of a young person's self-esteem to avoid preferential treatment either by coaches or administrators. Whether the term "equal" or "equality" is used, the concepts are the same. Although clearly a matter of context, the implementation of the concept must always have regard for respect, honesty and openness. Impartiality is consistent with respectful conduct and is applicable whether administering elite or recreational programs. Participants should have the confidence that disclosure of preferential treatment will not result in negative consequences for them. Administrators must act quickly and effectively when such consequences become known. Any unfair treatment must be dealt with and corrected quickly and effectively.

Although the BMHA views its programs broadly, it clearly recognizes that sexual, physical and physiological abuse are very serious societal problems and supports all on-going initiatives directed at eliminating these problems in sport with the formation of our own Abuse and Harassment Committee. Recent public scrutiny and revelations have only given the BMHA more momentum with its already on-going program and initiatives. The BMHA particularly sees the need to completely eliminate all abuse from the Game whether or not in the guise of motivational tactics.

The “Coach” is the most influential participant in preventing harassment and abuse during competition. This can be achieved by “talking the talk” and “walking the walk”. In teaching the athletes that the concept of Respect is the most important aspect of the competition. The coach must use every opportunity to reinforce this principle by being a role model and communicating with athletes daily in practice, during pre-competition preparation, during competition and in post-competition feedback sessions.

We see the game of hockey playing a much more significant role in the development of young people in their values, morals, social maturity and physical and mental fitness. We want to focus even more on this development with emphasis on, as the Canadian Centre of Ethics in Sport points out "a morally acceptable mode of conduct" and which promotes acceptable conduct as:

- respect for persons
- protection from harm
- development of ethical conduct towards others
- notions of justice, fairness, equity
- ethic of care - the ethics of relationships (not just ethics of individual conduct)
- freedom to enjoy, to flourish
- respect for the game

The Canadian Centre for Ethics in Sport (CCES) is a newly formed organization arising out of a merger between the Canadian Centre for Drug-free Sport and Fair Play Canada. In combining the previous mandates and accomplishments of these two organizations, the CCES represents an internationally recognized leader in the field of ethics in sport, particularly with respect to the development of effective interventions for the promotion of fair play and drug-free sport. The CCES uses a comprehensive approach involving research, prevention, advocacy detection and deterrence for the promotion of ethical conduct in all aspects of sport in Canada.

These values should be demonstrated comfortably and advocated by all elements of the Game including administrators, players, coaches, parents and spectators. Parents and players should not feel intimidated at raising concerns nor fear negative consequences in coaches' and administrators' decisions. Administrators must step up when made aware of such tactics by decision makers and take remedial action. It is a win-win scenario whereby all participants are winners in socially positive and healthy development while enjoying a great game. Further, such allows for the achievement of athletic excellence. We see, as well, this objective complimenting the zero tolerance and non-violence on-ice initiatives that the BMHA fully supports. In fact, the BMHA sees its' program very much a part of and related to inappropriate on-ice activity by players and officials. As illustrated earlier, on and off-ice conduct cannot be separated as they are very much interrelated. Ultimately, peer pressure and scrutiny will be the best enforcement tool.

The BMHA emphasizes its program is complimentary and consistent with those put forth by other organizations and is a positive force to make the participation in the Game better.

A recommendation has been made to add to the Rules and Regulations, the following:

"Minor Hockey is provided to further and encourage the sport of amateur hockey, for the enjoyment of players, to teach sportsmanship and to help players form good character. The player and his welfare must be paramount. In the interests of sportsmanship and fair play, all those involved in minor hockey shall observe the tenets of fair play as identified in the C.H.A. Fair Play Code and toward that end, all players, coaches, parents and officials are required to sign a pledge to that effect before being allowed to participate in the minor hockey program in Barrie".

Amendments were recommended to the BMHA By-laws giving the BMHA the authority to summarily eject and suspend spectators for conduct unbecoming. The amendments were incorporated as Sections J and K in By-law 5 (April 2002 version). The BMHA is prepared to enforce these provisions as required and are an integral part of the reporting and enforcement protocol initiatives

ENFORCEMENT PROTOCOL INITIATIVES

The BMHA has adopted the "Stop Sign" program and will continue to carry on this mandatory program in an effort to eliminate the practice of checking from behind.

DISPUTES AND ARBITRATION COMMITTEES

The BMHA requires that a disputes and arbitration committee or similar committee be set up to attempt to mediate any disputes prior to the issues being heard by the Special Committee.

Other projects will be undertaken and/or supported when it is felt that such actions will build a safer climate for the game and/or will further enhance the fun, respect and/or development of hockey within the boundaries of the BMHA.

ABUSE AND HARASSMENT COMMITTEE

The BMHA has established the Abuse and Harassment Committee to investigate sensitive complaints and when appropriate to recommend disciplinary action to the Executive Committee.
